

Breaking news: Yale University colleagues question Little Italy shooting victim's death – ABC 10 News San Diego KGTV

SAN DIEGO (KGTV) – A dean from Yale University is speaking out about the deadly officer-involved shooting of his former colleague in Little Italy. He and other academics who knew Dr. Yan Li are questioning why the accomplished scientist was gunned down after she allegedly stabbed an officer. Dr. Sten Vermund, MD, PHD, is the dean of the School of Public Health. “We are not law enforcement experts and we cannot comment as Monday morning quarterbacks,” he acknowledged. However, he told ABC 10News that the body camera video shows that Dr. Li was clearly in a state of crisis, agitation and doubt related to the eviction notice that she was being served. “It seemed reasonable to someone looking at that body cam that a response

Read More