

PM could face another confidence vote 'in six months' as committee 'looking at rule change'

Boris Johnson could face another confidence vote in just six months as the leading Conservative committee is looking at changing the rules after he survived last night's vote, a senior Tory rebel has said...

Read More