'Taking innocence from children': Two-thirds of youngsters exposed to harmful online content – but only 16% report it

The UK's communications regulator is calling on young people to help protect each other by reporting harmful content online…

Read More